Regulatory Update

MPUC DG Interconnection Standards Update (Dkt CI-16-521): The Minnesota Public Utilities Commission (MPUC) is seeking comments on the draft MPUC staff recommendations to update Minnesota's distributed generation (DG) interconnection process, interconnection agreement, and reporting. This is considered Phase I of the MPUC initiative to update and improve the statewide interconnection standards. Interested parties may submit comments by March 29, with reply comments due April 13. MRES is reviewing the draft recommendations and planning to submit comments for consideration in the final staff recommendations. As Phase I concludes, the Minnesota DG Workgroup (MRES is a participant) and a technical subgroup are set to begin work on the update of the statewide technical requirements – Phase II. This stage of work will incorporate newly revised national technical standards, and other issues identified as areas in need of updating. Minnesota's update of its statewide interconnection technical requirements aim to be consistent with the recently updated national standard IEEE 1547 on interconnecting distributed energy resources to the electric grid.

Iowa

Last week was a very busy week in Iowa in more ways than expected. Friday, March 16, was the second funnel deadline for bills to be out of committees in the second house. However, the discussion was not centered on bill deadlines, but rather on the news of a resignation in Senate leadership. Senator Bill Dix (R-Shell Rock) resigned Monday as Senate Majority Leader and from his Senate seat after a video of an after-hours liaison with a lobbyist appeared online. This came as a shock to most legislators and by Wednesday, Senate Republicans had elected a new majority leader, Sen. Jack Whitver (R-Ankeny), who had previously been Senate President. Sen. Charles Schneider (R-West Des Moines) was elected as the new Senate President.

Meanwhile, the Omnibus Energy Bill, SF2311, which passed the Senate last week (27-23), has moved to the House. It was amended and passed out of the House Commerce Committee on March 15; it is now pending on the House Floor. As of right now, the IAMU-backed language to allow 28F financing for municipal utilities to develop natural gas systems is still alive in the bill. The Rural Electric Cooperative (REC) language to firm up their ability to recover fixed costs from distributed generation customers was removed in the Senate and was not put back in by the House committee. It is unknown if it will be put back in on the House floor. The Senate's energy efficiency language has been heavily amended and it streamlines some reporting and limits the Investor Owned Utilities (IOUs) to a rate-recovery for energy efficiency limited to 2 percent of a customer's total billing statement. This House committee amendment on energy efficiency and demand response would not affect non-rate regulated utilities. The bill now moves to the House floor for consideration.

Meanwhile, it is unknown how badly the Senate wants to eliminate energy efficiency programs. Senator Randy Feenstra (R-Hull) has authored a bill, SSB 3078, which would eliminate all state statute references to energy efficiency or energy efficiency programs. It is rumored that it may yet be heard this session. The bill is assigned to the Senate Ways and Means committee and is therefore not subject to committee deadlines.

With all the drama of the past week, there are other issues that continue to move forward. HF 2307, which would expand the involvement of the Iowa Utilities Board in the possible sale of a water or wastewater utility, passed the House (96-0) and the Senate (48-0) and is pending the Governor's signature. Also, SF 2235, which would make it a felony to damage critical infrastructure, passed the Senate (33-16) was placed on the House calendar, along with companion bill HF 2394, under unfinished business.

Like other states, Iowa is considering putting a measure before the electorate to amend the state constitution to add a victim's bill of rights. Marsy's Law, as it is referred to, has been adopted by several states, including North Dakota and South Dakota, and it puts into state statute or state Constitution a mandate that criminal proceedings include notice to the victim of all court proceedings, notice of bond or release of the defendant, and a right to be heard in open court at all stages of criminal proceedings. Both SJR 2010 and HJR 2010 are under consideration. If the resolutions are confirmed, the issue will go on the general election ballot.

Minnesota

The Minnesota Legislature in trying to cram several bills in this coming week. March 22 marks the day that committees must act favorably on policy bills in committees in their house of origin. These deadlines do not apply to House Capital Investment, Taxes, Ways and Means, or Rules and Legislative Administrations committees; nor to Senate Capital Investment, Finance, Taxes or Rules and Administration committees. Likewise, bills that have not been heard may still show up in Omnibus bills at a later date.

There are several energy bills that MRES is watching. Here are some of the key ones:

- HF 3685/SF 2919: This bill attempts to allow third parties to sell electricity directly to customers by modifying the definition of “public utility” in chapter 216B to exclude third parties who furnish electricity from wind or solar on customer’s property. MRES is particularly concerned with this bill as it can be seen as opening the door to deregulation lite—in which non-utility entities face no regulation while traditional utilities are still regulated as to safety, power quality, disconnect/reconnect, regional transmission authority market issues, NERC compliance, etc.
- HF 3497/SF 3166: A bill proposing to cap wireless equipment application fees at $3,000 for wireless facilities to be attached to water towers, buildings or “other structures designed for other purposes.” The utilities are opposing this bill as it undercuts the work that was done last year on the small cell wireless bill; and it requires utility customers to subsidize the work that must be done to review the application for safety, structural integrity, and make-ready work.
- HF 3688/SF 3245: This bill proposes to re-instate the Property Assessed Clean Energy (PACE) program for residential customers. This version of the bill is supported by the realtors, the banks, low-income advocates, and the Center for Energy and the Environment. The Senate version has passed the Senate Energy and Utilities Committee and is now pending in the Senate Commerce and Consumer Protection Finance and Policy committee.
- HF 3792/SF 3400: Requiring that by 2020, all wind generation turbines install aircraft detection lighting systems.
- HF 3794: Allowing customers whose peak demand is 10 MW (a change from current law of 20 MW) to opt out of energy efficiency programs.
- SF 3266: A bill that impacts the IOUs only, but all utilities are watching it. The bill originally would have required the IOU Integrated Resource Plans (IRP) to include an assessment of energy storage systems feasibility and required the Public Utilities Commission to set mandatory deployment targets of storage based on the IRP assessment. The bill has been amended to take out the mandatory targets. It passed out of Senate Energy and Utilities Committee last week and is now in the Senate Finance Committee.

- HF 3473/SF 3110: Allowing high-voltage transmission projects of greater than 200 kV to forego the Certificate of Need process when all affected landowners have already granted secured easements on the proposed route.
- HF 3675/SF 3129; HF 3760/SF 3628: Establishing a grant program to assist public schools in installing solar.

There are also some non-energy bills that MRES is watching carefully:

- HF 3034/SF 2491: To make public entity settlement agreements public and to file a report of public entity settlement agreements with the Legislature. MRES is concerned that this opens the door to allowing the public to gain information in sexual harassment or misconduct cases in which the perpetrator may have had a finding in his/her favor, but a severance settlement was reached with one of the two parties for workplace harmony considerations. The Senate version of the bill has passed out of State Government Finance and Policy and Elections committee and is now pending in Judiciary and Public Safety Finance and Policy.
- HF 3698/SF 3602: A bill to allow public-private partnerships for infrastructure projects. MRES is concerned as this bill could open the door for mandating that public entities allow more private ownership of what is already publically-owned assets.

Minnesota bills of relevance can be found on the MRES Minnesota Legislative and Regulatory webpage. Also available on the website is the updated MRES Minnesota Legislative Guide to assist you in contacting your area legislators.

North Dakota

The interim Natural Resources committee will meet on March 29, in Bismarck. The agenda indicates that the committee will receive a presentation by the Northwest Landowners Association on the ability for land owners to give input on wind energy development. This is part of the on-going discussion of finding ways to promote cooperation and communication between the Public Service Commission and political subdivisions. Also, the committee will consider other testimony and presentations on the communication with landowners on the siting of wind, oil, and other projects.

The interim Judiciary Committee is meeting in Bismarck on April 2. The agenda includes further presentations and discussion on publishing legal notices. The agenda also indicates that there will be a presentation by the Legislative Council staff on a bill draft relating to the publication of legal notices. There has been a lot of testimony in this interim committee by the North Dakota League of Cities and others on the costs of publication to smaller communities.

The interim Taxation committee has provided notice of an April 13 meeting in Bismarck. The potential topics listed for the meeting includes further discussion of economic development taxes, property taxes and tax exemptions. This committee has considered the taxation of wind before and that could come up at this or other interim meetings.

South Dakota

Since the legislators left the Capitol on March 9, there has not been a lot of activity. Most bills that MRES has been following have not seen any action by the Governor yet. We should have more action this coming week. The legislature will be returning on March 26, to consider overriding any gubernatorial vetoes that may have occurred.

MRES maintains updates and links on key South Dakota bills on the MRES South Dakota Legislative and Regulatory webpage. Also available on the website is the updated MRES South Dakota Legislative Guide to assist you in contacting your area legislators.

Wyoming

The 2018 Wyoming Legislative budget session is now over. After going nearly one week past their deadline, the House and Senate were forced to make small cuts to school funding in order to fund state construction. Some of the bills that Missouri River Energy Services was watching fell by the wayside. HB 80, which would have created additional extraction and severance taxes on surface and underground coal did not come up for an introduction. SF 74, a bill that would have enhanced criminal penalties for crimes against critical infrastructure, was vetoed by the Governor. SF 14, which proposed to create a biennial energy strategy committee, died in committee.

There were some bills that were successful. The Governor signed SF 10, which prohibited IOUs from receiving rate recovery for payments to distributed generation customers that were greater than avoided costs. SF 11 was also signed by the Governor. This bill clarifies that utilities owned and operated through a joint powers entity under the Wyoming Joint Powers Act are exempt from Public Service Commission rate regulation. The “move over” bill, HB 36, has also been signed by the Governor; it requires vehicles passing stopped or slow-moving maintenance or utility vehicles to move over and slow down as they are passing.

Federal

DOE Chief Calls for Better Cyber Coordination, as FBI and DHS issue report on Russian Attacks to Grid. In testimony this week before a House Appropriations Subcommittee, Energy Secretary Rick Perry said he's "not confident" the federal government has an adequate strategy in place to address the "hundreds of thousands" of cybersecurity attacks directed at the U.S. every day. Perry asserted that the Department of Energy (DOE) is taking appropriate steps, but voiced less confidence in the government-wide response: "I think we're attacking it department-wide, but I'm not sure we're attacking it government-wide."

Perry's comments come as the Trump administration accused Russian government hackers of carrying out a deliberate, ongoing operation to penetrate vital U.S. industries, including the energy grid — a major ratcheting up of tensions between the two countries over cybersecurity. The administration says the hackers penetrated targeted companies to a surprising degree, including copying information that could be used to gain access to computer systems that control power plants. "Since at least March 2016, Russian government cyber actors ... targeted government entities and multiple U.S. critical infrastructure sectors, including the energy, nuclear, commercial facilities, water, aviation, and critical manufacturing sectors," according to a joint alert issued by the Homeland Security Department and the FBI.

Russia has been widely accused of launching increasingly dangerous attacks on power grids around the world. According to researchers, Moscow's most frequent target has been Ukraine. In recent years, Ukraine has twice blamed its neighbor for shutting down portions of its power grid by using digital weapons that hackers had not previously deployed on that scale. The alert says Russian hackers attempted to access the grid and other industries primarily to spy and collect information. Their weapons included malware-laden Word documents — such as engineers' resumes — that appeared in legitimate-seeming emails, but which harvested login and password information from victims' computers. The hackers used these to target vendors and other companies on the periphery of their main targets, then leapfrogged their way to gain access to higher-level networks and install malware. Once inside, the hackers would move around and conduct reconnaissance, and appeared interested in industrial control systems that manage processes for critical infrastructure, the alert reads. "The threat actors appear to have deliberately chosen the organizations they targeted, rather than pursuing them as targets of opportunity," the alert says. Other methods used by the hackers included downloading a small photo from a human resources page and expanding it, showing control systems equipment models and status information in the background; and implanting malware in the websites of trade publications and other websites related to the targeted industries.

House Holds Hearing on Bipartisan Cyber Bills. The House Subcommittee on Energy held a legislative hearing on a number of bipartisan bills that seek to provide additional resources and make incremental changes in energy sectors' response to cybersecurity risks. The hearing focused on H.R. 5239, which directs the Secretary of Energy to establish a voluntary DOE program that identifies and promotes cyber-secure products intended for use the bulk-power system. This "supply chain" security bill received support from a panel of industry witnesses and the Department of Energy. The witnesses also voiced support for H.R. 5240, which requires the Secretary of Energy to establish a program to facilitate and encourage public-private partnerships to promote and advance the physical and cybersecurity of electric utilities — particularly smaller utilities. These bills are expected to be voted on by the House Energy and Commerce Committee in the coming months. Given the recent FBI and DHS report on Russian cyber incursions on the electric grid, additional bills can be expected.

DAHMS BILLS HEARD IN COMMITTEE

Senate File 3125 allows schools to claim Extended Time Revenue for students who are enrolled in career and technical education courses occurring outside of the regular school day. Examples of this could include hours-long instruction on Saturday or on weekday evenings. These blocks of time are seen as necessary when learning, for example, complex tasks like welding or auto mechanics. The bill was heard in the E-12 Education Policy Committee and was re-referred to the E-12 Education Finance Committee.

Senate File 3145 adds $140,000 to an existing appropriation dedicated to support farmer mental health. Currently, there is one mental health professional working through the Farm Business Management Program that farmers can contact to discuss the stresses of surviving the current farm economy. Unfortunately, after multiple years of very low commodity prices, the demand for these services has risen. This additional appropriation allows the Farm Business Management Program to add new staff to assist farmers. Senate File 3145 was heard in the Agriculture Finance Committee and laid over for possible inclusion in the Omnibus Supplemental Budget Bill.

As the Senate's lead on insurance issues, Senator Dahms is chief author of a bill (Senate File 3241) updating the State of Minnesota's laws governing the financial solvency of insurance companies operating within the state. The bill was the product of an agreement between the Minnesota Department of Commerce and the insurance industry that brings Minnesota up to the standard used in 42 other states and the District of Columbia. The bill was heard and passed in the Commerce and Consumer Protection Committee, re-referred to the Judiciary and Public Safety Committee, passed, and sent to the full Senate for consideration later this session.

SCHOOL SAFETY PROPOSALS ADVANCE

This week, Senate Republicans advanced multiple bills focused on school safety: adopting a comprehensive approach to mental health and facilities security. Three of the proposals provide new flexible funding for school safety while a fourth addresses a state emergency evacuation regulation that could inadvertently put students at risk.

Senate File 2754 provides one-time revenue for safe schools that can be used for a variety of things including mental health, school counselors, structural building improvements, and more.

Senate File 2900 allows schools to modify their emergency drill procedure by not forcing the institution to fully empty the building every time an alarm sounds. Currently, schools must fully evacuate even in the instance of a verified false alarm. The perpetrator in Parkland exploited this.

Senate File 3068 creates a new grant program for public school districts to conduct professional safety audits of their local schools and identify any potential areas for improvement. Districts may receive up to 100% of their costs reimbursed through state grants.

Senate File 3243 allows school districts to use long-term facilities maintenance revenue for remodeling and equipping existing school facilities to increase the safety and security of students and staff.

Funding for safe schools can be used to increase building safety, and hire school resource officers, mental health professionals, counselors, social workers, and others to ensure schools are as safe as possible. Recognizing that school districts across Minnesota are rich in diversity, these proposals afford most of these decisions to the local school districts to choose what best fits their communities.

ELDER CARE AND VULNERABLE ADULT PROTECTION ACT INTRODUCED

On Thursday, Senate Republicans unveiled the Elder Care and Vulnerable Adult Protection Act: a proposal to prevent elder abuse in long-term care facilities and make substantive changes to the state agency tasked with investigating allegations against senior care facilities.

The legislation is the final product of hundreds of conversations with Minnesotans across the state including family members of vulnerable adults, care providers, and those who experienced abuse. There is near-universal agreement that changes need to be made especially within the Minnesota Department of Health's (MDH) oversight role. The following provisions are included in the proposal:

- ★ Strict abuse prevention measures
- ★ Streamlined and transparent complaint processes
- ★ Fair and timely communication of investigation findings
- ★ Protections for consumers against misleading marketing practices
- ★ Increased oversight and accountability of the Office of Health Facility Complaints
- ★ Continued state action on elder care issues

MNLARS UPDATE

After a decade of planning and over a $93 million investment, the Minnesota Vehicle and Licensing Registration System (MNLARS) was rolled out last July and experienced several problems. The failure of the MNLARS system has been problematic for many Minnesotans. In the eight months since its release, several issues still need to be resolved.

On Thursday, the Senate passed bipartisan legislation aimed at bringing MNLARS to functionality. The legislation authorizes $9.65 million from existing driver and vehicle services funds and addresses the immediate costs of I.T. support. The bill also includes language that allows for strict legislative oversight as the MNLARS system moves forward meeting their agreed upon benchmarks.

The measure was also passed by the House and awaits Governor Dayton's signature.

Taxes

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF TAX BREAKS

It's tax season, and many District 16 residents will notice extra savings on their tax returns thanks to reforms passed by Senate Republicans last year. Here are some highlights:

Social Security: Starting this year, many of you will be able to deduct a portion of your Social Security Income from your income taxes.

Student Loans: If you're paying down student loans, make sure you claim our new student loan tax credit.

College Education: If you're saving for your child or grandchild's college education, take advantage of the 529 College Savings Plan credit. Joint filers can deduct up to $3,000! If you're a teacher going back to school for a master's degree, you can deduct some of your tuition, books, and other instructional materials.

First Home Buyers: If you are saving to buy your first home, you can open a First Time Home Buyers Account, and any interest you earn on that account can be deducted from your taxes. We want to make it easier for you to achieve your own American Dream.

Own Ag Property: If you own ag property, you may notice lower property taxes because of the change in the tax laws on school bond referendums.

Veterans: Your pensions are no longer subject to income taxes. Republicans actually got this done in 2016, but I still get questions about it. I want to make sure all veterans are aware of this change.

Regular Drill Meeting
3/19/2018

The Madison Volunteer Fire Department met in regular session with Chief Mitch Wellnitz presiding.

Roll call was made and minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Gary Hansen gave the treasurers report and it was approved as read.

Emergency calls for the past month:

1. February 28 -- false alarm, Park Avenue Apartments
2. March 7 -- house fire, Hwy 212, mutual aid for Marietta?
3. March 19 -- Haas garbage fire -- cancelled in route

In regards to the March 7th fire call, MFD will be sending in a bill even though the fire was located in Marietta's fire district due to the fact that MFD was first on the scene and did the majority of the work and used mainly MFD's equipment at the scene.

Mark Olson gave the training report:

- Tonight (3/19) training held on auto extrication at the fairgrounds.
- The training schedule was finalized for 2018 and a copy given to all in attendance.
- Monday, April 2nd is our next scheduled training.

Next meeting is scheduled for April 16th.

April Hall Duties: Randy Hansen and Scott Schake

The VFW has been reserved for the next WCA meeting to be held on May 21st.

New labels are here for all helmets.

Clothing samples will be brought in soon for individuals to order MFD labeled clothing.

A truck committee meeting will be held after the regular monthly meeting is adjourned.

Motion was made by Brian Tebben to adjourn meeting seconded by Jerod Zimbelman, carried.
